Blues Prodigy, Quinn Sullivan, Returns to the Weinberg Center Stage

FREDERICK, MD, September 26, 2018 — At the age of 19, Quinn Sullivan has been a music professional for more than 75 percent of his life. He's shared the stage with many of his heroes including Buddy Guy, Carlos Santana and B.B. King. His current concert tour will stop in Frederick Maryland Friday, October 26, 2018 at 7:00 PM at the Weinberg Center for the Arts.

Tickets begin at $20 and may be purchased online at WeinbergCenter.org, by calling the Box Office at 301-600-2828, or in person at 20 West Patrick St. Discounts are available for students, children, military, and seniors.

Sullivan has packed some extraordinary experience into his decade-long career, and that's even more remarkable when you consider that he's only 19. His third studio album, Midnight Highway, was produced by multi GRAMMY® winner Tom Hambridge, and was released worldwide in early 2017 on Mascot Label Group's PROVOGUE label. The album is yet another milestone in Quinn's extraordinary journey, which began with him jamming with the kids music combo Toe Jam Puppet Band at age three, appearing on Ellen when he was six, and being taken under the wing of blues legend Buddy Guy at age eight, whose protégé he remains to this day.

Quinn's age and enduring relationship with Buddy Guy is certainly notable, but so too is his total dedication to his craft. He's well on his way with Midnight Highway, for which he had a hand in writing three of the stand-out tracks, "Eyes For You", "Lifting Off" and "Going." One of the other songs that Quinn tackled is George Harrison's "While My Guitar Gently Weeps". The emotion that comes out of his guitar comes straight from his heart with a fluency usually spoken from musicians much older than him. Don't miss this opportunity to see and hear him perform live!
