modern-day troubadour, Nakoia is a multi-instrumentalist from New York state who began his musical career playing piano as a teenager. After graduating from high school, Nakoia studied music theory and vocalization at the Berklee College of Music, and then began performing weekly at the coveted Brandy's Piano Bar in Manhattan. Nakoia has toured internationally following the release of his first two albums. His first album, Light In The Dark, 2012, featured a full bodied pop score, and his second release, A Dozen Other Loves, 2014, showcased Nakoia's softer side with its deep acoustic cuts. His musical agility has turned the heads of fans, the White House, and international stars alike. Nakoia has rubbed elbows with some of today's top artists including Tom Rush, St. Vincent, and Esperanza Spalding.
