Peter Noone has delighted audiences for generations with his incredible career. He achieved international fame as the lead singer of Herman's Hermits. Their classic hits, including "I'm Into Something Good," "Mrs. Brown, You've Got A Lovely Daughter," and "I'm Henry VIII, I Am," continue to resonate with fans worldwide. Throughout the '60s, Herman's Hermits sold over sixty million recordings, with fourteen singles and seven albums earning gold status. They were twice named Cashbox's "Entertainer of the Year." Noone's photogenic presence graced the covers of numerous international publications, including Time Magazine. Peter Noone's star-studded career also includes successful film roles and collaborations with artists like David Bowie, Debby Boone, and Graham Gouldman. He starred on Broadway in "The Pirates of Penzance," earning rave reviews. Noone's acting career thrived with guest-starring roles in prime-time television shows, and he hosted popular music programs, such as VH1's "My Generation."

Joining Peter Noone at the Weinberg Center are The Marcells, renowned for their 1961 hit, "Blue Moon," which sold over two and a half million copies. With three record albums and numerous hit singles, The Marcells have left an indelible mark on the music world. Their signature song, "Blue Moon," has been featured in major motion pictures and TV shows.
