Seán Dagher is a versatile artist with a passion for exploring diverse musical traditions, including Celtic, Baroque, Medieval, Arabic, French-Canadian, and Maritime. As a member of Skye Consort and co-artistic director of La Nef, he has left an indelible mark on the world of music. Known for his captivating performances, Seán sings and plays an array of instruments, including the Irish bouzouki, mandolin, oud, and banjo. His voice is familiar to millions through his recordings for the Assassin's Creed video game series, particularly in Black Flag, where his renditions of sea shanties and other songs have garnered over 70 million streams. Seán's influence extends beyond gaming, as evidenced by his popular Shanty of the Week video series, attracting a global audience and earning him a dedicated following. His compositions and arrangements have been showcased across Canada, the United States, and Europe, demonstrating his ability to weave a musical tapestry that transcends borders. In addition to his work with the Festival du Monde Arabe and collaborations with esteemed artists like Suzanne De Serres and Sandra Gulland, Seán has made significant contributions to theatre productions as a composer and sound designer. His accolades include multiple nominations for OPUS and ADISQ awards, and his involvement in the ADISQ-winning CD, La Traverse Miraculeuse, with La Nef and Les Charbonniers de l'enfer.
